

(market report)

Kitchen Crushes: Today's cookspaces aren't rooted in a singular style (such as farmhouse classic or urban contemporary). "Rather, homeowners are taking a more transitional approach, mixing finishes and textures and embracing a real sense of openness," says interior designer Ginger Brewton. Here are a few of the trends she's got her eye on:

White stainless steel appliances: White Ice French door refrigerator by Whirlpool

Curved, textured, or striated tiles: Creta Gris curved tile (top) and Borneo Blue by Porcelanosa, through Tile & Stone Design Studio

GINGER BREWTON

Published in: House Beautiful and Garden & Gun; Coastal Living 2013 Idea House designer

Her kitchen design advice: "Don't be afraid to do something different, but make sure it's something you think you can live with for years to come. Kitchens can be the most expensive room in the house. Choose elements that appeal to you, not your friends, mother-in-law, or anyone else."

Find her at: gingerbrewtoninteriors.com or follow her on Pinterest

Oversize hardware: Twisted Sash pull by Rocky Mountain Hardware, 15 inches, shown in unfinished brass, through Bird Hardware

“Today's vinyl wallpapers aren't old '80s vinyl; think updated linen and chevron patterns—they're funky and elegant and totally practical.”

—Ginger Brewton, interior designer

Vinyl wallpaper: by Schumacher and Phillip Jeffries, through Ginger Brewton Interiors

Contrasting surface finishes: high-gloss white cabinetry with matte beechwood veneer walls, kitchen by Siematic

PHOTOGRAPHS BY (WALLPAPER) ASHLEY GARTZ & COURTESY OF (REFRIGERATOR) WHIRLPOOL (TILES) PORCELANOSA. (HARDWARE) ROCKY MOUNTAIN HARDWARE, & (KITCHEN) SIEMATIC